

EMD Serono Announces New Family Planning Resource Center to Provide Families Affected by Multiple Sclerosis with Information, Connection and Support

Launch of new resource empowers prospective mothers with multiple sclerosis (MS) and their partners to have conversations about family planning

ROCKLAND, Mass., — January 09, 2020 — Today, EMD Serono announced the launch of the Family Planning Resource Center to support prospective mothers who are living with multiple sclerosis (MS) and their loved ones with family planning information and resources before, during and after pregnancy that is intended to supplement a patient’s relationship with her healthcare provider.

“Being proactive and planning ahead is so important for women living with MS and thinking about having a baby,” said Terrie Livingston, Head of Patient and Payor Solutions at EMD Serono. “Making it easy to find reliable, actionable information that a patient can use in conversation with her doctor is critical to helping people make the decisions that are right – for them, their baby and their family.”

EMD Serono worked with MyHealthTeams to launch the Resource Center within MyMSTeam, a social network for people living with MS.
